

Enquiry Line: 01473 431 886
 info@rabbitbehaviour.co.uk

IS YOUR RABBIT BEHAVING BADLY?

As a popular choice of pet, rabbits are usually bought in the hope that they will provide the same level of companionship as a dog or a cat. In the right conditions this is certainly possible, however many rabbits can develop unforeseen problems like nervousness, aggression, inappropriate toilet training, marking behaviour and destructive behaviour. The possible causes of these problems are many and varied and thus an accurate diagnosis needs to be established to enable an appropriate treatment programme to be developed.

The Rabbit Behaviour Advisory Group was formed by Emma Magnus, Anne McBride and Georgie Hearne who are all members of the Association of Pet Behaviour Counsellors. If you are having problems with your rabbit's behaviour take this card to your veterinary surgeon and ask for a referral.

www.rabbitbehaviour.co.uk

Emma Magnus BSc (Hons) MSc ■ Anne McBride BSc PhD Cert Cons FRSA ■ Georgie Hearne MSc
 Veterinary Advisor: A L Meredith MA VetMB CertLAS CertZooMed MRCVS

Please detach below

REFERRAL CARD

The completed card MUST accompany the client to the consultation

Client's name:

Referring Veterinary Surgeon's name:

Nature of Problem

RABBIT
Name:	Sex:
Breed:	Age:

PLEASE THE APPROPRIATE BOX:

- Medical History Accompanies this card
- Medical History supplied by post/fax/phone/email
- I am supplying a Royal College approved Behaviour Referral form via the client/post/fax (can be supplied by Rabbit Behaviour Advisory Group)
- I am supplying a referral letter
- There is no relevant medical history

Signed: _____ MRCVS

Referral Clinic Details:
Name:
Address:
Phone:	Fax: